Sohrab Aftabjahani received his Ph.D. in Electrical and Computer Engineering from the Georgia Institute of Technology in 2011. Since 2010, he has been with the Intel Corporation in Oregon contributing to its state-of-art R&D projects in various roles including senior security researcher, senior DFT engineer, senior digital design and validation engineer, and graphics Integration validation engineer. He joined Intel after 9 years of experience working as software and hardware engineer for TRW and Computer Science Corporation, Telecommunications Research Center, and several electronic system design companies.