

Rosario Cammarota, “Ro”, is a Principal Engineer at Intel Labs. He leads privacy technologies research with a focus on cryptographic techniques to compute on encrypted data.

He holds the grade of IEEE Senior Member. He serves as program committee members for venues of international prestige in hardware and system security such as NDSS, HOST, DAC, and ICCAD.

He is a prolific author and inventor, and one of the recipients of the Semiconductor Research Corporation Mahboob Khan Outstanding Industry Liaison Awards in 2017, 2018 and 2019.

He obtained his Ph.D. in Computer Science from the University of California Irvine in 2013.